RED CROSS THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET TO DISEASE.

The greatest problem facing the vorld today is the world's health -its vitality. This problem must be solved before the great social and economic problems can be solved.

A large part of the diseases of the world are preventable discases. The Red Cross of the leading nations is the agency through which the task of overcoming pre-

In America the health situation is a grave one. Disease is undermining the vitality of the people. It is the great mission of our Red Cross to war on disease. It is the problem to which the American Red Cross proposes to devote Itself in the future. The American Red Cross will not assume to do the work of public officials or other organizations, but it will cooperate with them in welfare work. . It hopes to be the cementing influence to unite effectively their efforts.

To provide a physical union of welfare endeavor, health centers will be established, where a survey Indicates the need, a small center, perhaps a building, in a large community.

All the countries of Europe look to America to lead in establishing health centers and gathering togather the movements dealing with health and the prevention of disease.

The carrying out of the Red Cross program demands the continued support of the country expressed in Red Cross memberships, . For this reason, the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2 to 11, is stressing not money, but personal enlistmen.

FIRM FOUNDATION FOR ROADS

Alm to Distribute Pressure Due to Wheels Concentrated on Surface-Look to Future.

Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture,)

The purposes of a foundation are to ald in distributing the pressure due to wheel loads concentrated on the road surface, so that the intensity of pressure on the subgrade will not exceed a safe unit-bearing power, and als to prevent, if possible, the crust of the road from being disturbed by the upward pressure of the subgrade due to the action of frost, ground water, or other disturbing influence. In the case of a payement consisting of comparatively small blocks, such as vitrified brick, bonded to each other very slightly or not at all, an entire wheel foad aight he concentrated on only a few square inches of foundation, in which case it would be necessary for the foundation to take care of practically the entire distribution of the load. On the other hand, a monolithic pavement, in which the individual units are well bonded together, might distribu the wheel loads to obviate all necessity of further distribution by the foundation, and if adequate drainage were provided and there were no danger of heaving of subgrades, the foundation

The heaviest vehicle that ordinarily has passed over a public highway heretofore is the 15-ton traction engine. Such engines are so designed that the rear axle carries about twothirds of the total weight, which arrangement gives a concentrated pressure on the road surface of about five tons under each rear wheel. The use of much heavier equipment is in sight, however, and unless some regulations be passed to prohibit it, the occurrence of ten-ton, or even heavier motortrucks, may become common on highways adjacent to large cities or between large centers that are only a few miles apart. In assuming the maximum wheel load for any particular road a reasonable allowance should be made for future increase. Since motortrucks have come into use there has been a constant tendency to increase both their rates of speed and the loads they carry, and it is probable that this tendency will continue. Furthermore, many roads not now subjected to motortruck traffic will attract such traffic after they are improved, and this possibility always should be considered. Increase in the volume of traffic also may be an Important factor
